MARTIAL LAW IN FLOOD SECTION THIRTEEN INSTANTLY

DESOLATION MARKS

WATER LEAVES TOLL

Nearly Score Dead;
Property Damage
Fifteen Millions

TROY, Ala., March 18.—Martial law prevails in Elba and Geneva, Ala., today, W. E. Persons, of the Alabama National Guard, took the action last night after Col. Milton Stone, of Gov. Bibb Graves' personal staff, reported to the governor there were insufficient guardsmen in the flood stricken areas of the state to cope with the situation.

Looting was reported growing, and although the public health service reported disease well under control, guardsmen were ordered to instruct all persons now in the area to present themselves at the various rescue camps for inoculation.

The health service has reported but nineteen cases of measles and less than a dozen cases of influenza, saying all of these had been segregated. Col. Persons, however, is reported to have asked Gov. Graves for permission to force those persons still in the towns of Elba and Geneva to leave to prevent disease and looting.

Gov. Graves, it is reported, has issued a statement asking a relief fund of $250,000. He announced the funds would continue to be received by Charles A. Moffett, chairman of the state board of administration, until Tuesday. Then, the governor said, a program will be mapped out to rehabilitate the wrecked areas.

The flood waters in three days' rampage, have taken an estimated death toll of nearly a score of lives and caused damage amounting to $15,000,000, according to the most accurate reports obtainable today.

The muddy waters in the Elba section have receded, leaving in their wake 15,000 homeless persons, but Opp, Ala., where 300 Elba refugees were taken after being rescued, is reported in straits almost as serious. At least 1000 persons are homeless there.

In southwestern Georgia the Flint River is again out of its banks, the people of Newton, Ga., already having left their homes for the third time this year.

In Florida, better conditions prevail, indicating receding of the waters.

In the Alabama section emerging from its worst disaster in history, scenes of utter desolation are being revealed as the swollen Pea River subsides. Stories of stark suffering, privation and death are being told by rescuers alike.

Elba, which apparently bore the brunt of the suffering, is now but a vast mud flat, in ruins and practically abandoned.

The property damage here alone is estimated at $4,000,000 by Y. W. Rainey, president of the Elba Bank. This business man, one of those trapped in the court house, despairs of the rebuilding of the town.

"Whether we will rebuild on this spot, I don't know," he said.

Not a building in the mud-covered town is undamaged. Hundreds of them were completely destroyed and scores were carried away on the crest of the flood and swept down the Pea River.

At Elba the paved streets were washed away, and all over the landscape are carcasses of hogs, cows, dogs and horses.

Stories of flood survival find the humorous occasionally mixed ironically with the pathetic.

CINCINNATI, O., March 18.—Norwood-Hyde Park Bank and Trust Co., a state bank with $7,500,000 assets, with Governor Myers V. The new bank will have $300,000 capital, $300,000 surplus and $150,000 undivided profits. Both banks will retain their present quarters and personnel.

HOOVER TO DICTATE FARM RELIEF BILL; NO CHANGES WANTED

Leaders Warn That Pet Schemes Will Not Be Approved

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The word was sent out through the house and senate office buildings today by congressional leaders the new farm relief bill will be what President Hoover wants and nothing more.

Pet schemes for an equalization fee, for government subsidies, or for handling the exportable farm surplus which are being advocated by some of Mr. Hoover's supporters in congress—must be abandoned, it is said.

The warning of the leaders was given preliminary to the openings of hearings next Monday by the senate agriculture committee. It followed the speech Saturday night of Chairman McNary of the committee, indirectly pointing out the new bill must not be expected to be a cure-all and real agricultural rehabilitation can come only from a long time relief policy embodying a dozen subjects which cannot be included in the new measure.

By their new advice, the leaders hope to hold the proposed measure within sound co-operative marketing limits and thus dispose of it within the first few weeks of the special session of congress meeting here April 15. Their problem, however, is difficult.

Mr. Hoover does not desire to dictate the bill and his disinterest to espouse it as "a Hoover measure" has caused some embarrassment to the congress leaders. The present plan is that Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and his technical assistant will be called before the senate committee at the outset of the hearings to lay down a specific plan of legislation. This will give the legislation the necessary touch of administration approval.

The plan to be endorsed is now already generally known from the substance of Mr. Hoover's speech in St. Louis at the close of the recent presidential campaign. It will call for creation of a federal farm board to use a $300,000,000 revolving fund lending whatever portion of that sum is necessary to enable co-operative organizations representing the various farm products to store their food stuffs and market them in an orderly manner. There will be no provision for handling the exportable surplus.

Representatives of the American farm federation, the grange and other farm organizations will also be heard at the outset and later other interested parties will be given a chance to testify. The hearings will last two weeks and the bill will be ready for action in the senate when congress meets.

SMITH AND STEIN FACING NEW TRIAL; JURY HAS DISAGREED

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—Harvey C. Smith, former secretary of state and Frank L. Stein, former president of the Ohio National Bank. He was charged with having aided in the embezzlement of $285,000 from the Citizens Mortgage Co.

A jury in their trial disagreed Saturday night.

A. E. Querine and R. H. Patterson were found guilty of embezzlement charges.

Querine, Patterson and Smith are former officials of the mortgage concern and Stein is a former president of the Ohio National Bank. He was charged with having aided in the embezzlement.

John Chester, Franklin County prosecutor, following the discharge of the jury, said he would move for a retrial of the charges against Smith and Stein.

Defense counsel also indicated they would file a motion for a new trial of Querine and Patterson.

GIRL FLYER BREAKS ENDURANCE RECORD FOR FEMINE PILOTS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—Supremacy of the air, held by men since the Wright brothers made the first flight twenty-five years ago, today was challenged by a young woman who had remained aloft alone for more than twenty-two hours.

Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, new holder of the world's endurance flight record for feminine pilots, claimed today the time would soon come when women would threaten flight records of men.

Mrs. Thaden landed her Travelair biplane at Oakland Airport at 1:54:47 p. m. yesterday to conclude a solo flight of twenty-two hours, three minutes and twelve seconds.

She had exceeded the performance of Martin Jensen, noted transpacific aviator, who recently failed in New York to break the men's solo flight record of approximately

CHICAGO TO LAUNCH OFFENSIVE TO STOP TRAFFIC IN LIQUOR

Indictments Under Jones Law Will Be Penalty

CHICAGO, March 18.—A four-pronged offensive to "dry up The Loop" and jail "big shots" of bootlegging got under way today with a conference of government and city officials, state's attorneys and police.

As a means of backing words with action, the government stood ready to indict under the Jones law, providing a penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for vendors of liquor.

George E. C. Johnson, United States district attorney, was instrumental in bringing together the four arms of law enforcement and said a determined drive would be made to dam the flow of liquor at the source rather than confiscating small quantities here and there.

Police Commissioner William F. Russell, who has issued drastic orders to policemen to stop bootlegging; Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court; Alexander C. Jamie, chief of special federal dry agents; Harold Keele, assistant state's attorney; Prohibition Administrator E. C. Yellowley sat in on the conference.

Federal courts, already dogged with liquor cases, will be relieved somewhat by the new "tacket" court which will handle minor dry law cases.

Johnson said he expected 250 indictments a month after the drive gets into action.

DAYTON, O., March 18.—Mrs. Mary Gurdin, 60, died Sunday from injuries received when she was struck by an automobile.

PAIR CONVICTED OF CHILD STEALING BUT BOY STILL MISSING

Arnolds Will Appeal; McHenry Is Again In Custody

WOOSTER, March 18.—Detectives today were working on a new tip of the whereabouts of Melvin Horst.

Although the tip came anonymously, it has been traced to its source, and gives promise of having value, Special Prosecutor Walter Mougey said.

He declined to reveal the nature of the tip, and whether or not it renewed hopes that the missing boy is still alive. He said he had no connection with the report Saturday that the boy's body would be recovered within "twenty-four hours."

The "24-hour" report was given circulation while a jury still was deliberating the fate of Elias Arnold and his son Arthur on charges of child stealing Saturday night. The jurors returned a verdict of guilty, and both prisoners were returned to county jail to await sentence.

The verdict, while it administered a visible shock to the defendants, failed to shake them from the silence they have maintained since their arrest.

"Why should we talk," they asked when they were interviewed in their cells after the verdict had been returned. "We know nothing about the boy, or where he is now."

Much of the glory in the victory was by the state in the court-room is dimmed through inability of investigators to find any trace of the boy who disappeared on the eve of Dec. 27. Hundreds of tips have been run down in vain and the new one may be just like the others.

"But the tip is worth while running down, and we'll spare no efforts in determining its truth or falsity," Mougey said.

The jury which convicted the Arnolds was out seven hours and twenty-five minutes before returning a verdict. Common Pleas Judge Starn said the customary three days would be allowed for the filing of a motion for a new trial, before sentence is pronounced.

They probably will be sentenced Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Bascom McHenry, son-in-law of Elias Arnold, indicted with the Arnolds for stealing the boy, was back within the jurisdiction of the court today. He was arrested at Orrville Saturday night, and a hearing Sunday was held for the grand jury, charged with assault and threats against Charles Hannah.

McHenry, according to Hannah, met him in the corridor of the court room while the jury was deliberating and accused him and his son, Junior, of "lying about us."

"I'll get you yet," he will be only a question of time," McHenry is reported to have declared.

Mayor A. E. Weygant, before whom he was arraigned at Orrville, fixed his bond at $2,000, which was provided by Mrs. Elias Arnold, owner of the property in which the family lives.

AGED PRISONER TO GET CONDITIONAL PARDON FROM PEN

Governor To Order Release Of William Barker, 82

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—William Barker, 82, the oldest prisoner in the state penitentiary, who was sent up from Batavia for possession of liquor, will receive a conditional pardon, it was learned at the state house today.

Governor Cooper will order Barker's release on condition the aged man does not again violate the liquor laws, it was said.

Barker is suffering from Bright's disease and physicians who examined him were reported to have said his sudden death would not be surprising.

Inasmuch as a month must elapse before a parole from the state board of clemency can become effective, the conditional pardon is deemed advisable, it was learned.

Barker's commitment several months ago aroused statewide comment.

Judge George White of the Clermont County common pleas court has forwarded a petition to the governor, asking for a parole for Barker.

KILLED WHEN CABIN HITS FREIGHT TRAIN

Pilot Only Survivor Of Worst Air Disaster; Failure Of Motors Blamed; Crash Occurs On Take Off.

NEWARK, N. J., March 18.—Delmont Parsons, one of the two persons who escaped instant death yesterday when a sight-seeing plane crashed into a freight train near here yesterday, died today in St. James Hospital.

Parsons' death raised the toll of life to fourteen, leaving Lou Foote, the pilot, the only survivor. Foote is suffering from multiple fractures of the skull and hospital authorities said he had only slight chances of recovery.

Parsons and Foote were riding in the pilot's compartment above the passenger cabin. Physicians estimated that all thirteen of the passengers in the lower cabin died within thirty seconds after the huge plane rammed into the steel freight car, falling into two pieces.

The failure of one and perhaps two motors was blamed today for the crash—the worst accident to heavier-than-air machines in the history of American aviation.

Officials of the Colonial Airways, Inc., operators of the plane which was knifed in two by a steel freight car, called a meeting early today, after which they told the United Press they were certain that Pilot Lou Foote, realizing that something was wrong with his engines, was trying to make a landing when the plane crashed against the train.

They denied reports that Foote had had only 120 hours of flying experience. He has been a pilot for ten years, they said, with a total of 2,000 hours in the air and 250 hours with the type of plane in which he barely escaped death yesterday.

The plane, loaded with sight-seers, had just left the Metropolitan Airport for a flight over New York City. Casper Lamotte, sitting in an automobile nearby, saw the huge nickel craft flash past a chimney, heading sharply for the ground. He lost sight of the plane when it went beyond a railroad embankment. But he noticed one of the three motors was stuttering, he said, and another one seemed dead.

Two towermen of the New Jersey Central Railroad were the next to see the plane. It was traveling about 100 miles an hour, they said, skimming the marsh reeds and heading for the railroad tracks.

The towermen, Matthew Torhan and William Murtagh, heard the noise of a terrific impact. Said in the open freight car shot into the air; gasoline spouted thirty feet from the plane's tanks.

Torhan and Murtagh found the plane in two pieces, one consisting of the smashed cabin, the other of the wings and pilot's compartment. Foote rose from the wreckage, swayed and toppled into the freight car. Another man crawled out of the compartment and stood dizzily on the smashed and splintered steel.

"Give me a cigarette," he gasped and then fell into the freight car unconscious. He was Delmont Parsons, who escaped only because he was riding in the pilot's compartment.

Below in the cabin were the bodies of the following: Anton Bolles, West New York, N. J.; Joseph Bauer, Stamford, Conn.; Raymond Helmstetter, Irvington, N. J.; Thomas Hendrickson, Weehawken Heights, N. J.; Walter G. Hentschel, Jersey City, N. J.; Hagmas, Stamford, Conn.; Andrew Hagmas, Stamford, Conn.; his brother; William Zisser, Irvington, N. J.; Patrick A. Janus, Jersey City, N. J.; William Margaretten, Perth Amboy, N. J.; Gertrude Steever, Bloomfield, N. J.; W. C. Steever, Bloomfield, N. J.; his brother; Reginald D. Woolward, Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Foote, who came here from Detroit with her husband about a week ago, visited the hospital. When she came out of her husband's room, she said:

"He told me two motors failed." Colonial Airways officials said they were at a loss to explain why the motors failed.

BATTLE AT TORREON MAY DECIDE REVOLT STARTED BY REBELS

Conflicting Reports Hide Real Facts In Mexico

Conflicting reports from the Torreón area—center of the Mexican rebellion military maneuvers—hid the true situation today as fighting started for possession of the city held by the rebels under Gen. J. Gonzales Escobar.

Government announcements at Mexico City said federal troops had defeated rebels at two points, had clashed at a third and that four columns had been ordered to attack Torreón today.

Rebel leaders claimed sweeping victories at San Pedro—one of the battles which the government claimed to have won—and at other points near Torreón, one announcement asserting that insurgents had captured 1,200 government soldiers.

Escobar led the rebel fighting at Benavides, where the government claimed an easy victory. Federal announcements also said rebels had been met in the Asunzolo section.

Federal airplanes bombed the city of Torreón over the week end, killing two women and a Frenchman, according to advices from that city. A rebel aviator drove off the attacking planes in the first air battle of the rebellion.

Minister of War Calles announced that he expected to occupy Torreón before nightfall and said the rebel retreat—which he claimed already has started—virtually has been cut off.

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—The Presidencia announced today that four columns of federal troops would attack Torreón this morning confident of capturing the Coahuila city from rebels before nightfall. Rebels were attempting to retreat northward, the announcement said.

The insurgents probably will be forced to fight their way out if they retreat northward, the announcement said, a federal aviator having destroyed a railway bridge to cut off retreat from Torreón.

Federal confidence in the outcome of the advance on Torreón was strengthened by reports of two government victories in the vicinity of Torreón. The Presidencia announced that rebels had been defeated at San Pedro de Las Colonias and Benavides, the insurgent General J. Gonzales Escobar participating in the encounter at Benavides where the rebels were routed.

Casualties were not estimated. Escobar's force estimated at 4,000 or more men, was still attempting to evacuate Torreón, the government announcement said.

The boys were working in the power plant when they left the institution. They were reported seen in the vicinity of Canal Winchester early today and deputies were sent there to investigate.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The word was sent out through the house and senate office buildings today by congressional leaders the new farm relief bill will be what President Hoover wants and nothing more.

PAIR CONVICTED OF CHILD STEALING BUT BOY STILL MISSING

Arnolds Will Appeal; McHenry Is Again In Custody

WOOSTER, March 18.—Detectives today were working on a new tip of the whereabouts of Melvin Horst.

Although the tip came anonymously, it has been traced to its source, and gives promise of having value, Special Prosecutor Walter Mougey said.

He declined to reveal the nature of the tip, and whether or not it renewed hopes that the missing boy is still alive. He said he had no connection with the report Saturday that the boy's body would be recovered within "twenty-four hours."

The "24-hour" report was given circulation while a jury still was deliberating the fate of Elias Arnold and his son Arthur on charges of child stealing. Saturday night the jurors returned a verdict of guilty, and both prisoners were returned to county jail to await sentence.

The verdict, while it admittedly a visible shock to the defendants, failed to shake them from the silence they have maintained since their arrest.

"Why should we talk," they asked when they were interviewed in their cells after the verdict had been returned. "We know nothing about the boy, or where he is now."

Much of the glory in the victory was by the state in the courtroom is dimmed through inability of investigators to find any trace of the boy who disappeared on the eve of Dec. 27. Hundreds of tips have been run down in vain and the new one may be just like the others. "But the tip is worth while running down, and we'll spare no efforts in determining its truth or falsity," Mougey said.

The jury which convicted the Arnolds was out seven hours and twenty-five minutes before returning a verdict. Common Pleas Judge Starn said the customary three days would be allowed for the filing of a motion for a new trial, before sentence is pronounced.

They probably will be sentenced Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Bascom McHenry, son-in-law of Elias Arnold, indicted with the Arnolds for stealing the boy, was back within the jurisdiction of the court today. He was arrested at Orville Saturday night, and a hearing Sunday was held for the grand jury, charged with assault and threats against Charles Hannah.

McHenry, according to Hannah, met him in the corridor of the court room while the jury was deliberating and accused him and his son, Junior, of "lying about us."

"I'll get you yet. It will be a question of time," McHenry is reported to have declared.

Mayor A. U. Weygant, before whom he was arraigned at Orville, fixed his bond at $2,000, which was provided by Mrs. Elias Arnold, owner of the property in which the family lives.

THIRTEEN INSTANTLY KILLED WHEN CABIN HITS FREIGHT TRAIN

Pilot Only Survivor Of Worst Air Disaster; Failure
Of Motors Blamed; Crash Occurs
On Take Off.

NEWARK, N. J., March 18.—Delmont Parsons, one of the two persons who escaped instant death yesterday when a sight-seeing plane crashed into a freight train near here yesterday, died today in St. James Hospital.

Parsons' death raised the toll of life to fourteen, leaving Lou Foote, the pilot, the only survivor. Foote is suffering from multiple fractures of the skull and hospital authorities said he had only slight chances of recovery.

Parsons and Foote were riding in the pilot's compartment above the passenger cabin. Physicians estimated that all thirteen of the passengers in the lower cabin died within thirty seconds after the huge plane rammed into the steel freight car, falling into two pieces.

The failure of one and perhaps two motors was blamed today for the crash—the worst accident to heavier-than-air machines in the history of American aviation.

Officials of the Colonial Airways, Inc., operators of the plane which crashed, said the plane was in the air for about 100 miles an hour, they said, skimming the marsh reeds and heading for the railroad tracks. The towermen, Matthew Torhan and William Murtagh, heard the noise of a terrific impact. Said in the open freight car shot into the air, gasoline spouted thirty feet from the plane's tanks.

Torhan and Murtagh found the plane in two pieces, one consisting of the smashed cabin, the other of the wings and pilot's compartment. Foote rose from the wreckage, swayed and toppled into the freight car. Another man crawled out of the compartment and stood dizzily on the smashed and splintered steel.

"Give me a cigarette," he gasped and then fell into the freight car unconscious. He was Delmont Parsons, who escaped only because he was riding in the pilot's compartment.

Below in the cabin were the bodies of the following: Anton Bolles, West New York, N. J.; Joseph Bauer, Stamford, N. J.; Raymond Helmstetter, Irvington, N. J.; Thomas Hendrickson, Weehawken Heights, N. J.; Walter G. Hentschel, Jersey City, N. J.; Stephen Hagmas, Stamford, Conn.; Andrew Hagmas, Stamford, Conn.; his brother, William Zisser, Irvington, N. J.; Patrick A. Janus, Jersey City, N. J.; William Marrett, Perth Amboy, N. J.; Gertrude Steever, Bloomfield, N. J.; W. C. Steever, Bloomfield, N. J.; her brother, Reginald D. Woodward, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Foote, who came here from Detroit with her husband about a week ago, visited the hospital. When she came out of her husband's room, she said:

"He told me two motors failed."

Colonial Airways officials said they were at a loss to explain why the motors failed.

Conflicting Reports Hide Real Facts In Mexico

Conflicting reports from the Torreon area—center of the Mexican rebellion military maneuvers—hid the true situation today as fighting started for possession of the city held by the rebels under Gen. J. Gonzales Escobar.

Government announcements at Mexico City said federal troops had defeated rebels at two points, had clashed at a third and that four columns had been ordered to attack Torreon today.

Rebel leaders claimed sweeping victories at San Pedro—one of the battles which the government claimed to have won—and at other points near Torreon, one announcement asserting that insurgents had captured 1,200 government soldiers.

Escobar led the rebel fighting at Benavides, where the government claimed an easy victory. Federal announcements also said rebels had been met in the Asunzolo section.

Federal airplanes bombed the city of Torreon over the week end, killing two women and a Frenchman, according to advices from that city. A rebel aviator drove off the attacking planes in the first air battle of the rebellion.

Minister of War Calles announced that he expected to occupy Torreon before nightfall and said the rebel retreat—which he claimed already has started—virtually has been cut off.

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—The Presidency announced today that four columns of federal troops would attack Torreon this morning confident of capturing the Coahuila city from rebels before nightfall. Rebels were attempting to retreat northward, the announcement said.

The insurgents probably will be forced to fight their way out if they retreat northward, the announcement said, a federal aviator having destroyed a railway bridge to cut off retreat from Torreon.

Federal confidence in the outcome of the advance on Torreon was strengthened by reports of two government victories in the vicinity of Torreon. The President announced that rebels had been defeated at San Pedro de Las Colonias and Benavides, the insurgent General J. Gonzales Escobar participating in the encounter at Benavides where the rebels were routed. Casualties were not estimated.

Escobar's force estimated at 4,000 or more men, was still attempting to evacuate Torreon, the government announcement said.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY SESSION NEAR END; PET BILLS GREASED

Both Houses Will Convene Monday Evening Again.

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—The eighty-eighth general assembly is in the dying days of the regular session.

Various dates for its passing have been speculated upon, but it is generally thought that it cannot last longer than three or four weeks.

The leaders of both houses are marking time for the present, awaiting the general appropriation bill. This bill appropriating millions of dollars for the running of the state government during the next two years will come out of the house finance committee either Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

Both the house and senate finance committees have met jointly to consider the budget. This has resulted in the expedition of the work.

Hence not more than ten days is expected to be required to pass the bill through both houses.

With the financial matters out of the way, the administration measures will be rushed through as speedily as possible and adjournment will be called.

Sometime this week the bill recodifying all election laws of the state, revamping the machinery and completely overhauling the system will come out of committee for action on the floor of the senate.

The two houses reconvene, after the week end recess, tonight at 7 o'clock.

No important matters were on the calendar for consideration. This has been almost a general occurrence since the calendar committees began to operate.

Senator Joseph N. Ackerman's bill to permit colleges, benevolent institutions and the like to appropriate property for expansion purposes will be considered in the house.

Representative Joseph G. Ehrlich's measure to permit children of orphanages to be admitted free to public schools, even though they or their parents may come from other states also will come up.

The senate may consider the Hadden resolution for classification of property for taxation and the repeal of the unified rule under which Ohio has assessed taxes for nearly a century.

Friend Conser, Zimmerman, representing the Church of the Brethren, was elected president of the second unit of the Greene County Sunday School Association at the meeting at Mt. Zion Church, Sunday.

The Rev. Arthur Leaming, pastor of the Beaver and Mt. Zion Churches, was elected vice president; the Rev. Leonard Broadstone of Alek Church, was elected secretary and M. Michael of the M. P. Church, Alpha, was named treasurer.

Dr. George Subitz, of the Central Theological Seminary, Dayton, gave the principal address at the meeting. Music was furnished by an Alpha orchestra under direction of W. R. Sayrs.

WARDEN SNOOK IS OUSTED AT ATLANTA

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The resignation of Warden John Snook of Atlanta Penitentiary was asked for the "sole purpose of obtaining efficient prison management," not because of his objections to the undercover system, it was said at the department of justice today.

His resignation was requested after a two-year investigation, the department said. In a statement issued at Atlanta, Snook said his resignation already had been submitted but justice officials said today it had not been received.

Efforts made by Snook and his friends, the department said, to make it appear that his resignation was requested because of his opposition to the undercover system "are not warranted and the two issues should not be confused."

M'CRACKEN UNHURT IN PLANE CRASH

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 18.—William P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce, bureau of aeronautics, escaped injury today when the Ryan airplane in which he was flying to Chicago, nosed in the mud at Bernard airport here and bent a propeller.

In taking off the field the big plane sank into the muddy runway and nosed down. Inspector E. A. Cutrell, who was at the controls, was going at a low rate of speed which probably prevented a serious accident.

McCracken came here today from Washington by railroad, meeting Cutrell who had flown here yesterday. He hoped to take off in time to reach Chicago to make an address there late today.

SEVENTH IN LEGION ESSAY CONTEST

Pauline Hall, 16, of 502 E. Church St., wrote the following essay on "What Constitutes Good Citizenship?" which placed seventh in the recent American Legion essay contest:

"WHAT CONSTITUTES GOOD CITIZENSHIP?"

What is a citizen? Who are our citizens? What determines good citizenship?

The population of every city is made up of two classes, residents and citizens. A citizen is one who has been given full privileges in the city; is willing to share its responsibility, to its general welfare. Rights and privileges very seldom exist without duties and obligations, thus citizenship has its duties.

To some such person as criminals insane and illiterate folk, political powers, such as voting and holding public offices are restrained; but if a citizen possesses full political rights, it is his duty to take an active part in securing for the city, honest and competent men. The right of voting is not only a privilege conferred by the state on its citizens, but it is a duty as well. Indifference and apathy of voters are among the great dangers of popular government. The character of our government is largely what the voters make it, therefore it is the duty of the voter to see that honest men are nominated and elected. Every voter should avail himself of the knowledge concerning the qualifications of the candidates for office, and the merits of the measures upon which he is to express his opinion, and having done this he should contribute his share to the election.

Thus, it is the duty of every citizen to exercise this power and not until this power is exercised, is the real value and significance of being a citizen realized.

The ability to abide by the laws of the city is another important factor in determining good citizenship. Any citizen that is in harmony with the laws that govern him, does all in his power to see that they are enforced and has a willingness and inclination to respect and abide by these laws, may be classed as a good citizen in this respect. The ability to serve the community is and should be, still another means of determining real citizenship. A good citizen should support, cherish and contribute to the community of which he is a part.

By support we mean that he should lend his aid physically, financially, morally and spiritually to any project that is sponsored in the community. By cherishing the community the idea is that a citizen should strain every effort to beautify, cleanse, and in general, do everything that tends to elevate the community.

The ability to serve the church could perhaps be said to be one of the foremost factors in determining good citizenship. Along with every movement that is expected to be successful, religion should play some part; thus in trying to live up to good citizenship from a political standpoint, it should be just as important to form good citizenship from a religious standpoint.

Thus from the preceding paragraphs we may show the conclusion that a citizen is one who has been given full political rights, is willing to share the responsibility of the city, cherish its interests, and contribute to its welfare. We may recognize a citizen by (1) his ability to exercise his privilege of voting, (2) his ability to abide by the laws, (3) his ability to serve the community and church. We may rightfully say that the citizens of Xenia are those who are able to live up to the above named standard.

"POW WOW" DOCTOR BLAMED IN MURDER

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 18.—Charles T. Belles, 29-year-old East Allentown mechanic who "pow wowed" in his spare time, was under arrest today as a suspect in what may become Pennsylvania's second "hex" murder within a year. Police have established that Verma Octavia Delx, 21, died from three poisons, any one of which would have killed her, only a few hours after visiting the "pow wow" doctor on Friday for the seventh time. Her body was carried to a field near the emergency landing field of the trans-continental air mail line, where it was found Saturday by two hunters. Belles said he had treated the girl for "eczema" but denied giving her the three "hex" charms which were found on her body. These bore the mystic words or prayers of hex doctors.

George Robinson, Negro policeman, attempted to arrest me while off duty for an old fine. I had made a payment on this fine to my bondsman, who had not had time to get to police headquarters. WARDEN SNOOK IS OUSTED AT ATLANTA

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The resignation of Warden John Snook of Atlanta Penitentiary was asked for the purpose of obtaining efficient prison management, not because of his objections to the undercover system, it was said at the department of justice today.

His resignation was requested after a two-year investigation, the department said. In a statement issued at Atlanta, Snook said, his resignation already had been submitted but justice officials said today it had not been received.

Efforts made by Snook and his friends, the department said, to make it appear that his resignation was requested because of his opposition to the undercover system "are not warranted and the two issues should not be confused."

M'CRACKEN UNHURT IN PLANE CRASH

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 18.—William P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce, bureau of aeronautics, escaped injury today when the Ryan airplane in which he was flying to Chicago, nosed in the mud at Bernard airport here and bent a propeller.

In taking off the field the big plane sunk into the muddy runway and nosed down. Inspector E. A. Cutrell, who was at the controls, was going at a low rate of speed which probably prevented a serious accident.

McCracken came here today from Washington by railroad, meeting Cutrell who had flown here yesterday. He hoped to take off in time to reach Chicago to make an address there late today.

SEVENTH IN LEGION ESSAY CONTEST

Pauline Hall, 16, of 502 E. Church St., wrote the following essay on "What Constitutes Good Citizenship?" which placed seventh in the recent American Legion essay contest:

"WHAT CONSTITUTES GOOD CITIZENSHIP?"

What is a citizen? Who are our citizens? What determines good citizenship?

The population of every city is made up of two classes, residents and citizens. A citizen is one who has been given full privileges in the city, is willing to share its responsibility, to its general welfare, rights and privileges very seldom exist without duties and obligations, thus citizenship has its duties.

To some such person as criminals insane and illiterate folk, political powers, such as voting and holding public offices are restrained; but if a citizen possesses full political rights, it is his duty to take an active part in securing for election, honest and competent men. The right of voting is not only a privilege conferred by the state on its citizens, but it is a duty as well. Indifference and apathy of voters are among the great dangers of popular government. The character of our government is largely what the voters make it, therefore it is the duty of the voter to see that honest men are nominated and elected. Every voter should avail himself of the knowledge concerning the qualifications of the candidates for office, and the merits of the measures upon which he is to express his opinion, and having done this he should contribute his share to the election.

Thus, it is the duty of every citizen to exercise this power and not until this power is exercised, is the real value and significance of being a citizen realized.

The ability to abide by the laws of the city, is another important factor in determining good citizenship. Any citizen that is in harmony with the laws that govern him, does all in his power to see that they are enforced and has a willingness and inclination to respect and abide by these laws, may be classed as a good citizen in this respect. The ability to serve the community is and should be, still another means of determining real citizenship. A good citizen should support, cherish and contribute, to the community of which he is a part.

By support we mean that he should lend his aid physically, financially, morally and spiritually to any project that is sponsored in the community. By cherishing the community the idea is that a citizen should strain every effort to beautify, cleanse, and in general, do everything that tends to elevate the community.

The ability to serve the church could perhaps be said to be one of the foremost factors in determining good citizenship. Along with every movement that is expected to be successful, religion should play some part; thus in trying to live up to good citizenship from a political standpoint, it should be just as important to form good citizenship from a religious standpoint.

Thus from the preceding paragraphs we may show the conclusion that a citizen is one who has been given full political rights, is willing to share the responsibility of the city, cherish its interests, and contribute to its welfare. We may recognize a citizen by (1) his ability to exercise his privilege of voting, (2) his ability to abide by the laws, (3) his ability to serve the community and church. We may rightfully say that the citizens of Xenia are those who are able to live up to the above named standard.

NEW SECRETARY OF STATE

The big benefit from the administration of Henry L. Stimson as governor general of the Philippine islands was the opportunity it provided the politics headed by Manuel Quezon to shift their front and acquire a formal change of heart without losing their faces. The opposition of these gentlemen to Governor General Wood was purely political and strategic. They knew that their outcry against "military government" and their demand for immediate independence were ridiculous. There was no military government in the genuine sense, and those who yelled for it would not have known what to do with independence if it had been thrown in their faces, and they had been told to go ahead and run the islands. But having committed themselves to an attitude of non-cooperation and obstruction toward General Wood, the Quezon crowd did not know how to right about face, and they were fast marching into trouble, and were rapidly losing prestige, when the death of General Wood brought a change of administration.

When Mr. Stimson appeared in Manila, the former malcontents very sensibly lost no time in shifting their attitude and climbing into the bandwagon, even though the process involved an open recantation of some of their former doctrines, including the independence cry. And the new governor general, being a wise man, made things as easy for them as he could. He accepted the proffered cooperation of the Quezon group at its face value. He encouraged native business and adopted a helpful, sympathetic, constructive attitude toward it; and perhaps most important of all from the purely political point of view, he did whatever he could properly to make the Filipinos feel that they had a big hand in the administration of affairs.

Under the Stimson regime the council of state has included the president of the senate, the speaker of the house, the majority floor leaders of both houses and the heads of the six executive departments, the cabinet being made up after conference with the leaders of the majority in the legislature, thus resembling in its constitution the "responsible" British cabinet. This arrangement seems to have worked very well, and if Mr. Stimson's successor can carry on what he has begun, and at the same time keep the native politicians within bounds, the next few years ought to be years of great advancement in the Philippines.

Apparently Mr. Coolidge has annexed the smile that won't come off.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

NEW YORK. — You've probably read in the newspapers that Demaris Dore is better known along the Main Artery as "Hoty-Totsy," a tag given her because of her stage style and pep, zip and torrid warbling. Now she is reported saying she saw the Fatty Walsh shooting, and the police have questioned her. She has "walked out" of more shows and cafe revues than perhaps any other local entertainer, because she is difficult to handle, although her longest stay was at the Frivolity club before it was Mabel Wilbrandt, where she enticed handsome trade.

She is a clever lass, and should have clicked in a big way long ago. Her career probably will be in tatters before the mystery murder in Miami is solved. She almost testified against Peaches Browning at White Plains, but got no further than the front pages.

She crashed the newspapers during the Ruth Snyder-Judd Gray affair, too, having told reporters: "I think I once saw them in our night club."

Now she is a part of the Miami mixup, and with all the so-called publicity she has received she cannot find a job!

In fewer words, she can get into more jams than a Broadway paragon.

JUST SO MUCH GREEK

Devoting at least four years to the manuscript of his play, "Young Alexander" (during which time, it is reliably said, he altered it 17 times), Hardwick Nevins has had the piece produced at the Biltmore. It stars Henry Hall and features A. E. Anson, and not a few of the auditors appeared to find it diverting enough the first night, for they responded with persistent hand-clapping at the end of the first scene in the last episode.

Just what prompted the lingering applause was not quite clear, at least one of us, who found "Young Alexander" a windy and witless play. True, its initial act was crowded with arresting dialogue and good pretending, which offered promise of a satisfying evening, but in the following act it limped trying to be gay—in the comic-strip manner.

It never quite caught its breath again after that. It proved just so much tedious, buried beneath an avalanche of wordage. "The Road to Rome" and "Marco

Franklin Roosevelt, governor of New York, is a fifth cousin of the late T. R. That's not a very close relationship, but Roosevelt is Roosevelt. T. R. was a sickly youth, but by courage and discipline he made himself a strong and active man. His namesake, the governor of New York, on the other hand, was an athletic youth. He was attacked with infantile paralysis and suffered greatly for years. By the same kind of courage and discipline he has gone a long way toward regaining his health and strength.

IS RABBIT IN THE PULPIT?

An eastern preacher says efficiency and hustle have supplanted scholarship in the American pulpit. Looking for a new pastor, the church asks, "Can he put it over? Can he raise the money? Can he organize? Can he make it go?" Does the church want boasters rather than scholars and men of deep spiritual insight? Does it want go-getters, rather than men who are kindly and tolerant and broad?

MAKING NEWS

Men who are eager to break into the newspapers, rarely stop to think that they have to make news before they can get it printed. Simply handing the newspaper editor an opinion isn't likely to bring publicity. The North American Review in a recent issue tells of the wonderful talent of Tex Rickard, fight promoter, for making news. He took a "Millionaire Special" train, loaded with capitalists, railroad owners, publishers, Wall street men, up into the woods to see Tunney fight last summer. It cost him some money but no paper could ignore a trip like that, with big names involved.

In the first Tunney-Dempsey fight Rickard carried a special train full of sporting writers to St. Louis to let them see him sign the contract with Tunney. Of course the real contract had been signed months before—but even the news writers didn't know it. It made news, and Rickard made money.

ROADS AN INVESTMENT

W. W. Lane, state engineer of Arizona, has the right idea when he teaches the people of his state that roads are an investment and not a mere necessity or a luxury. He figures that tourists driving across Arizona last year left $7,000,000 in profit with the folks who live there. This year the state expects to spend over $5,000,000 on its roads. That money will add to the joy of living and pay dividends at the same time.

FORCEMENT OF ANTI-WAR TREATY SAID TO DEPEND ON PUBLIC OPINION

By FRANK B. KELLOGG

Secretary of State (Frank Billings Kellogg was born at Potsdam, N. Y., Dec. 2, 1856. He went to Minnesota with his parents in 1865, where he obtained a common school education. He was admitted to the bar in 1877 and holds honorary degrees from three universities. He was city attorney of Rochester, Minn., for three years, then county attorney for five years. He formed a law partnership in St. Paul in 1887 and was president of the American Bar association in 1912. He has been special counsel for the United States in several federal litigations. He served as United States senator from 1917 to 1923 in which year he was named ambassador to Great Britain. He has been secretary of the state since March, 1925. His home is in St. Paul.)

The only enforcement behind any treaty is the public opinion of the people, and the general pact for the renunciation of war is a rallying point for the mobilization of world opinion.

We have just passed through a war the most far-reaching and gripping recorded in history. Nations and institutions of government have been wrecked, fair lands laid waste and millions of people sacrificed upon the altar of war and there has been human misery and suffering beyond description—all in the name of ancient institution of war deemed to be the inherent right of every sovereign state.

For the settlement of international disputes there must be a change not only in public sentiment but in the very principles which lie at the foundation of international co-operation. The legality of war must be denounced. It must not only be the opinion of peoples, but in the conduct of nations, be made an international crime. We must reverse the order of international conduct and instead of war being an acknowledged institution among nations it must be made an offense of nations.

I believe the greatest step ever taken for the furtherance of peaceful adjustment is the multilateral treaty signed by all the nations, solemnly pledging, in the name of their people, the renunciation of war.

I know there are those who claim that the treaty has no value—that it is a mere gesture. I can not believe that practically every nation in the world not swayed by sudden impulse but deliberately entering into a treaty solemnly pledging renunciation of war, backed by almost the unanimous opinion of the world, can be a mere gesture.

THE NEEDLE'S EYE

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

How can you have a face like May morning by the time that May-day dawns? One way is to begin in March, or sooner, to make it look that way, and by May-time your beauty should be utterly ravishing. It takes a little while to bring a neglected skin to its loveliest, and then it takes daily care to keep it always lovely. But it is worth the doing for with just a little, wise, scientific care you can achieve results of lasting beauty.

When you took stock of your spring assets and liabilities, were there some liabilities, were there not?—you found that your skin was a little yellow, perhaps a little faded and dry, with tiny lines appearing in it, especially around the eyes and mouth. And it may be that you discovered the beginnings, or the endings, of a double chin, and some creases on your throat and a general sagging among your facial contours. If you did not find these tell-tale signals of neglect—splendid! You have so much less work to undo. But if you did discover them, do not despair, for you can correct them with the proper creams and treatments.

First in importance comes the cleanser. A penetrative pasteurized cream for the normal or oily skin, an oilier cream for the dry. Cleanse night and morning with this cream and as often as necessary in between. And if you have blemishes or blackheads—ugly words these, but necessary, often used—a penetrative washing preparation, made of almond meal and other effective cleansers, better than soap at any time, but especially good at this season.

Every woman needs a nourishing cream to pat in around her eyes, and warm herbal packs and warm extract to use as compresses when her eyes are tired. These, with an astringent lotion to refine and close the pores and a proper cream powder foundation complete the preparations which she should have to rejuvenate her skin for spring.

Does it seem difficult? Then remember the simple formula. Cleanse, stimulate, tone. Accent the stimulate and add the other functions of clearing, tightening, nourishing as you need.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Fate played a mean trick on Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, in creating a situation which makes the tag end of his cabinet term overlap the beginning of the Hoover administration.

Secretaries of the Treasury and Labor Mellon and Davis hold over, and also, they hold over indefinitely, because the new president wants them. Secretary Kellogg holds over unavoidably—as a stop-gap—until his successor can be found.

True, Mr. Kellogg had expected to quit, but he would have changed his mind with mighty little urging. He is rather old, but not as old as Secretary Mellon by nearly two years.

If Mr. Kellogg had gone out with the rest of the retiring fourth-fifths of the Coolidge cabinet, he would have been all right—the over, everybody was too glad of it to blame Mr. Kellogg much.

—that it is a mere gesture. I can not believe that practically every nation in the world not swayed by sudden impulse but deliberately entering into a treaty solemnly pledging renunciation of war, backed by almost the unanimous opinion of the world, can be a mere gesture.

But lately Mexico has been rent by disorder once again.

And this time, strange to relate, we hear Mr. Kellogg objecting to the military precautions adopted on our side of the Rio Grande to protect Americans against chance shoes from over the river. They may provoke Mexican-American ill feeling, he says.

Maybe Secretary Kellogg's "multilateral anti-war treaty" activities worked the change in him. At any rate, he is frank in proclaiming them as a triumph which he believes will make his state department administration memorable in history.

An outbreak of hostilities upon the very heels of his accomplishment—on paper—undoubtedly would break his heart.

Mexico's latest troubles "broke" as President Hoover actually was taking the oath of office. Before the inaugural procession was over, Mr. Kellogg was awaiting the new chief executive in the White House, counselling forbearance.

Ultimatums would have pelted like hail on far less provocative no more than two or three years ago.

Too bad!—that Secretary Kellogg could not have quit, short of with his cabinet colleagues, his peace treaty glow still warming him.

He is rather a pathetic sight, officially frazzling out as a very temporary hold-over—a mere vestige of a little, very old man, bent of back, wizened of face, snow white of head, looking every bit of his 72 years—doing his final best, under a new chief, and with new faces all around him, to make his treaty the real thing.

usual thing. He had to hang on for awhile because Henry L. Stimson, chosen by Mr. Hoover to supplant him, was so far away, in the Philippines.

This places Mr. Kellogg in the position of a man who has been told that the boss will no longer need him after a certain date, and is filling out the interval—always an uncomfortable period for all concerned.

Mexico was the first hard problem that Mr. Kellogg had to grapple with after he took over the state portfolio from Charles Evans Hughes early in 1925.

He ends up with the same problem on his hands now, however. Mr. Kellogg looks at in a very different way today from the way in which he looked at it earlier in the 1920's.

Originally, with the militantly anti-Mexican James R. Sheffield as American ambassador on the other side of the Rio Grande, Secretary Kellogg assumed what he called a "firm attitude" against our southern neighbor. The trend was rapidly in the direction of war when President Coolidge substituted Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow for Ambassador Sheffield, and Ambassador Morrow speedily established pretty pleasant relations between the two governments.

It was not a very good advertisement for Secretary Kellogg's diplomacy—Mr. Morrow's success in averting the clash which the state department's ultimatums had been leading up to at so brisk a rate.

However, the finger seemingly

When you need a thorough cleanser.

If your skin is young and normal you will want, besides your cleansers a clearing, beautifying skin food, and a tonic, finishing lotion. These three preparations used night and morning will give you a splendid beauty treatment.

But if your skin is sluggish, dry or oily, whatever your age, and if you have a suggestion of lines or sagging contours, you need stronger treatment. A liquid stimulant, one of those that sting like liquid fire—you get to enjoy the sensation after a second using—will restore youthful circulation in almost no time at all. And you will want, too, a bleaching cream, not to use immediately after the stimulant, but to sleep in at night.

In addition to these the more mature woman should have a contour jelly or an even stronger balsam lactate to put into her chin and throat and wherever her facial contours show a tendency toward droopiness. As well as a nourishing or bleaching cream for her massage.

Every woman needs a nourishing cream to pat in around her eyes, and warm herbal packs and warm extract to use as compresses when her eyes are tired.

These, with an astringent lotion to refine and close the pores and a proper cream powder foundation complete the preparations which she should have to rejuvenate her skin for spring.

Does it seem difficult? Then remember the simple formula. Cleanse, stimulate, tone. Accent the stimulate and add the other functions of clearing, tightening, nourishing as you need.

Make a syrup of one cup sugar and juice of one lemon. Let it boil up and put in a tablespoon butter. Pour over eight or ten peeled bananas and bake about half an hour.

Perfection Salad — Four level tablespoons gelatine, one cup cold water, four cups boiling water, one cup mild vinegar, four tablespoons lemon juice, one cup sugar, two cups cabbage, finely chopped; four cups celery cut in pieces, four pimientos or fresh red or green peppers, salt to taste. Soften gelatine in cold water, add boiling water, stir until dissolved, then add sugar, vinegar, lemon juice and salt. When sugar is dissolved, strain. When mixture begins to stiffen add remaining ingredients. Turn into mold first dipped in cold water and chill. Cut in slices and serve on lettuce or endive. Garnish with mayonnaise. Or cut in cubes and serve in cases made of green peppers. This recipe serves about 20 people. Substitute fruit for the vegetables and you have a delicious fruit salad.

SUGGESTIONS

Keeping Home Tidy.

With small children, it is always a problem for a mother to keep the house tidy. One woman solved the problem by buying an old bureau with three drawers for her three children, in which they were taught to keep their playthings.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Favus. "A short time ago you ran a prescription for an ointment to be used in the treatment of favus. I took it to a drugstore and they wouldn't fill it, saying there should be something else in it. The prescription read: 1 dram of resorcin to the ounce of lanolin and oil, half and half. Will you please correct this?"

"MRS. D." I copied that prescription from Jackson's textbook on skin disorders, just as he had it, and rang up a druggist after your letter came, asking him about it, and he says it can be filled, so if you want to try it, go to another drug store, Mrs. D., where they have more competent chemists.

Favus is a skin disease somewhat on the order of ringworm, and it is contagious and may be transmitted from one person to another, or from infected cats, dogs, fowls, sometimes cattle and horses. It's most usual site is on the scalp, but may occur on any portions of the skin. It is not very common in the United States.

Jackson says there are three weapons in the treatment: faith, perseverance and parastides. Among the parastides (agents to kill the parasites), the X-ray treatment is the most effective. If this cannot be used, then medications can be used.

Before using any medication, the hair on the spots will have to be pulled out, then the spots scrubbed with soap and water, the latter being left on for five minutes to one-half hour and then rinsed off. Then follows the medication. The treatment has to be used daily and persevered in.

Another simple ointment is one consisting of one dram of crystals of iodine in one ounce of goose grease. (I don't know why goose grease is preferred to others.) Sulphur ointment, which can be gotten at the drug store already made up, if properly and persistently used, is effective.

However, favus is really a serious disease, and you should try to treat it yourself, Mrs. D., but should go to a skin specialist.

"I am writing to know if candy will hurt me. I have high blood pressure—180. I crave candy. I bloat and have gas pains in my bowels and have head noises. Take salts every morning. Will these hurt me? I am 71 years old, weigh 155 pounds."

"MR. J." Excess candy or starches food causes fermentation and so will cause gas, Mr. J., besides unbalancing the diet. This, in turn, may cause graver disturbances. (At your age your diet should be considerably lessened from what it was when you were younger.)

With high blood pressure you should eat very little of the acid foods: flesh foods, eggs, cereals, pastries—anything made of flour and any in excess. You can substitute potatoes for bread, or have bread made of potato or lima bean flour. You should also limit your salt very much. High blood pressure may be caused by many factors—among them the wrong diet—and the cause must be discovered and removed. However, there are other things that cause high blood pressure—toxemia from any cause, prolonged worry, over-emotionalism, etc.

Yes, habitual physic taking is harmful. We have an article on High Blood Pressure which you may have also one on constipation.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Sad indeed is the case of the person who seems incapable of loving anyone. But pathetic, also, is the person who loves too many. Awhile ago I advised a girl who couldn't choose between two men to sit tight and wait until something happened to decide which she liked best. Now two girls write and say they both love the same man and he cannot decide which he loves best. The girls are real sports, ready to abide by his decision, if he can but make it, even though the unfortunate one will suffer.

"Dearest Virginia, Lee: We are two girls much in need of advice. We have been very dear friends for almost a year. And, Virginia, do you believe that two girls can honestly love the same man? Our problem is indeed a very great one; it is, we are in love with the same man and he has told us that he loves both of us equally well. He cannot decide which he loves best. Now, Virginia, this man is wealthy, while we are in moderate circumstances. He has suggested that we go on a vacation, one to one place and one to another, while he stays at home. He has made the kind offer to supply us with the necessary financial means for these trips. The one he does not choose will, of course, be broken hearted, but will try to go on with a smile, and we will always remain friends. Although the three of us have discussed this matter many times, we cannot decide what is the proper thing to do. Shall we accept his offer? Please answer quickly."

"MUCH-IN-NEED-OF-ADVICE."

What if he decides in your absence that he loves neither of you in that way and finds another girl? Will you two still be good friends and console one another? I should think you would hate to be under such deep obligations to the man, girls, and that your families would disapprove, but of course such trips would be lovely if said parents did think it was all right. My BROKENHEARTED WIFE: Your letter was too long for the column. It is disappointing that your husband does not seem to be more of a pal for you, and it is hard on him that you found out so soon after marriage that you did not love him. He may have felt that, and it hurt and may account in some measure for his lack of affection. Every married woman, however, finds some things in the man she married that are not to her liking, as every man finds something in his wife to disapprove. You have yourself a husband, a darling baby, and why not accept friend husband as he is and get as much fun and happiness out of life as possible? Try it. He can't quarrel with you if you won't quarrel, and slapping and striking one another is not dignified or elevating in any way.

PETER'S ADVENTURES

BY FLORENCE VINCENT

MADAME DUCK'S BEAUTY PARLOR

Peter's memory was good and he drew a word picture of what he had seen that morning down by the old mill pond.

"Then Mrs. Duck did something that I had not seen with my own eyes. I never in the world would have believed. Mrs. Duck sat on her tail in the water—yes, sir, sat right down on the water—stretched out her long neck, peering with her bright eyes this way and that to see if anyone was watching her, and set to work to comb out her lovely feathers."

"Every once in a while Mrs. Duck would tip her head and gaze at her image in the clear mirror beneath her. She didn't seem quite satisfied with herself, though; something seemed to trouble her. At last Mrs. Duck tapped up on the back with her wing, and I heard her say:

"Dear, dear, is my back clean? I had to dig so deep for that snail I gave to little Flirt-tail that I fear there is still some mud upon it, although I have been scrubbed and scrubbed to get it off. See that spot right here!" And Mrs. Duck pointed with her claw to the tip of her bill, "Is that dirt or just a shadow?"

"You raised your head to look at your wife, and then I saw your neck was there all right—yards and yards of it! How you had done it I couldn't guess, but you had curled your neck up so it had been hidden among the feathers on your back."

"At your wife's questions you stretched it out, and somehow the way you did it reminded me of a person yawning—flapped wings once or twice as if to straighten out a crick, and at last bent your head toward Mrs. Duck and examined the spot on her neck."

"You are as clean and as fresh as mint, my dear," said you to her. "That is only a shadow. There, it is gone! Now that I have made your mind comfortable as to that, don't bother me again for a while. I was having such a comfortable snooze when you roused me."

"Float off for your morning gossip with your neighbors, wife. The children are large enough to take after themselves for an hour or so. Besides, don't worry. Nothing could come near without my knowing it. I sleep with both ears open, you know!"

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," they say. But that phrase does not apply to Dayton Stivers insofar as basketball is concerned. The righty-named Orange Crusher has won the state title for the seventh time since 1914 and the crown should fit perfectly by this time.

Saturday at Columbus Stivers experienced no difficulty in retaining the state championship won last year, defeating Dover, 1927 state champions, 36 to 22, practically the same margin by which Xenia Central lost to the Gem City quintet at Dayton during the regular season.

Big Bill Hosket, 190-pound, six-foot, four-inch center, twice all-Olio center, is the only one of the five regulars to return to school next year and he has been elected captain of the 1929-30 team. However, with Hosket again available Stivers seems destined to have another team of championship caliber next season.

Xenia placed three players on the first team and two on the second in the all-Miami Valley League honor teams picked by the coaches of the six schools. The first team is practically identical with that selected by the sport scribes, except that Scurry, Xenia forward, has one forward position undisputed with Bell on the second quintet. Scurry received more votes than any other player. He was given four first team and two second team votes for ten points. The other of the first team are Collins of Sidney at forward, Bull of Xenia at center and Gibney, Xenia, and Hilbert, Piqua, at guards.

There may be better shortstops than Rabbit Maranville but none have a better liking for the game. That was illustrated the first day the Rabbit reported to the Braves for spring training this season. He played so brisily that Judge Fuchs called him in and poked him out of the park. He came back in another way and was out at short-stop again. The judge put him out a different gate this time and he climbed in over the wire fence in center field.

"He wins," said the judge: "You can beat him for speed but not for spirit."

Frankie Frisch and Glenn Wright, two great infielders, will be put to the supreme test this year. Wright slipped a bit just when everyone was ready to hail him as the best of the modern shortstops. This year with the Robins he will have a chance to show whether the slipping was an accident or the beginning of a habit. As for Frisch, some observers tagged him as slowing up last year. If he doesn't perk up this season it will be a sign his best days are behind him. His rushing style of play puts a fearful strain on his underpinning.

Dave Baneroff and St. Petersburg realtors recently had a little land dispute that was settled to Dave's satisfaction. When the dust blew away, the realtors had Dave's money and their land back again. The veteran shortstop, however, was glad to get off that lightly. They were trying to make him keep the land.

Baseball Puzzlers

Charley Barrett, king of the ivory towers, presents a series of amusing and entertaining baseball episodes picked up during his career in touring the bushes. Each of the stories offers an interesting baseball rule problem.

By CHARLEY BARRETT
Most Famous Big League Baseball Scout

Scouting for the St. Louis American League club in the lower Texas country several years ago, I came across one of the most peculiar plays that has ever turned up on any diamond and brought about a most interesting question of the rules.

The game was being played at Amarillo and the home side had base runners on second and third with two out.

The batter then lined safely over the shortstop's head for a clean single as ever gladdened a manager's heart. Naturally, the runner on third scored, but a fine throw from the outfielder cut down the second runner at the plate for the third and apparently the last out of the inning.

Meanwhile, however, the first baseman yelled frantically for the ball. It seems the batsman, in his anxiety to take an extra base on the throw to the plate, cut first base completely. After much confusion the ball was tossed to first and the umpire immediately ruled the batter out for failure to touch that bag.

Then the question arose: Did the run count or did it not? Had the out at the plate closed the inning or did the "fourth" out take precedence over the third out?

To make the situation even more perplexing the two umpires disagreed. One insisted on allowing the run and the other insisted on not allowing it.

Stivers Barred From National Tourney

Team Defeats Dover Easily To Snare State Title

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—With the second straight state high school basketball championship in their possession Dayton Stivers today put away their cage suits and awaited spring weather to practice baseball.

The state scholastic champions will not compete in the national tournament to be held at Chicago, a rule recently voted by the State Teachers' Association prohibiting them from participating in the big meet.

Sweeping all opposition before them, the brilliant Orange Crushers won their seventh state title by trouncing Dover in the final game here Saturday night, 36 to 22, after easily defeating Akron Garfield and Columbus Central in early rounds.

Akron St. Mary's won the class B championship by defeating Bluffton, 28 to 26, after overcoming a big lead. The Akron five was the surprise of the tournament, ending each of its games in a cyclonic burst of speed and basket shooting that all but dumbfounded the opposition as well as spectators.

Stivers placed three men on the all-state class A team, Captain Bobby Colburn forward; Hosket, center; and Brown, guard, while Dover won two berths. Low at forward, and Beiter at guard.

The second team is composed of Summerix and Popeko, Akron Garfield forwards, Plank, Columbus Central, center, and Vandervort, Portsmouth, and Leiber, Canton McKinley, guards.

Seven players on the Dayton squad, including most of the five regulars, will graduate this year, weakening considerably the hopes of producing another titular team until another year or so.

OHIO STATE LEAGUE WILL START MAY 1

MASSILLON, O., March 18.—The newly organized Ohio State Baseball Association will open its season May 1 with six and possibly eight clubs in the circuit.

Tentative plans for the opening were mapped out at a meeting held here yesterday.

Six teams were awarded franchises. They are Canton, Cleveland Tellings, Massillon Agathons, Youngstown, Akron Firestones, and the former Akron Generals.

Association memberships were granted to Zanesville and Coshocton, with a limit of two weeks to enter the first half season. An elimination tournament will be held in August.

Officers elected were Edward J. Jacob, Canton newspaperman and well known sports promoter, president, and George Textor, of Massillon, vice president. The executive board will be composed of Paul Sheeks, Akron Firestones, Frank Mills, Youngstown, and Textor.

A schedule and by-laws will be adopted at a meeting to be held here next Sunday.

Bowling

With the end of the season in sight The Downtown Country Club and Fuller Bros. are engaged in a neck and neck race for the championship of the City Bowling League, with the former team one full game in the lead.

The D. T. C. Club made a clean sweep of its three-game series with Hunt's Broom Makers Friday night but Fuller Bros. kept pace with the leaders by winning three games from Browns through failure of the furniture team to appear for the scheduled match.

The D. T. C. Club meets Browns and Fuller Bros. oppose the Broom Makers in the double-header next Friday night. League standing follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
D. T. C. Club	46	29	.613
Fuller Bros.	45	30	.600
Browns	31	44	.413
Broom Makers	28	47	.373

MORGAN TO ADVISE ON FLOOD CONTROL

Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch College and president of the Dayton Morgans Engineering Co., who returned to his home in Yellow Springs Sunday following a month's tour of the country, went to Springfield Monday to make a personal survey of the situation previous to making suggestions for establishing a flood control system there.

It is hoped to establish a system that will guard against a recurrence of the recent disastrous flood in that city.

ROBBERS ESCAPE

TOLEDO, O., March 18.—Three robbers, engaged in opening safes in the Village Farm Dairy Company office, escaped amid an interchange of shots when they were discovered by Joseph Eno, night watchman early today.

Although he has finished first in 17 straight cross-country races for Grove City college, Grove City, Pa., James W. Evans, of Erie, Pa., never has been on a winning team. In 17 races he has been hard pressed but once. During his entire career Evans has been first in 23 out of 29 starts.

FINISHES WORK— ENDS LIFE

CLEVELAND, Mar. 18.—With all of his work finished, Henry Hynes, 57, Cleveland, a baggage man on the Big Four Railroad, ended his run in Cleveland early today in death.

It was a death brought on by his own hand, attendants at the county morgue, where his body was taken, said.

The Big Four train from St. Louis on which Hynes worked, left Galton at 12:30 a. m. Several pieces of baggage were taken on there. Hynes arranged for their proper handling here.

When his train pulled into Cleveland at 2:30 a. m. he was found on the floor of the baggage car writhing in agony. Beside him was a bottle of poison, and in a pocket a note asking that his brother, G. E. Hynes, of Bellaire, be notified.

He was dead before he could be taken to Lakeside Hospital. He had been in the service of the Big Four for thirty-five years, fellow workmen said. Recently he had been in ill health.

The judge put him out a different gate this time and he climbed in over the wire fence in center field.

"He wins," said the judge: "You can beat him for speed but not for spirit."

Frankie Frisch and Glenn Wright, two great infielders, will be put to the supreme test this year. Wright slipped a bit just when everyone was ready to hail him as the best of the modern shortstops. This year with the Robins he will have a chance to show whether the slipping was an accident or the beginning of a habit. As for Frisch, some observers tarred him as slowing up last year. If he doesn't perk up this season it will be a sign his best days are behind him. His rushing style of play puts a fearful strain on his underpinning.

Dave Bancroft and St. Petersburg realtors recently had a little land dispute that was settled to Dave's satisfaction. When the dust blew away, the realtors had Dave's money and their land back again.

The veteran shortstop, however, was glad to get off that lightly. They were trying to make him keep the land.

Baseball Puzzlers

Charley Barrett, king of the ivory hunters, presents a series of amusing and entertaining baseball episodes picked up during his career in touring the bushes. Each of the stories offers an interesting baseball rule problem.

By CHARLEY BARRETT

Most Famous Big League Baseball

Scouting for the St. Louis American League club in the lower Texas country several years ago, I came across one of the most peculiar plays that has ever turned up on any diamond and brought about a most interesting question of the rules.

The game was being played at Amarillo and the home side had base runners on second and third with two out.

The batter then lined safely over the shortstop's head for as clean a single as ever gladdened a manager's heart. Naturally, the runner on third scored, but a fine throw from the outfielder cut down the second runner at the plate for the third and apparently the last out of the inning.

Meanwhile, however, the first baseman yelled frantically for the ball. It seems the batsman, in his anxiety to take an extra base on the throw to the plate, cut first base completely. After much confusion the ball was tossed to first and the umpire immediately ruled the batter out for failure to touch that bag.

Then the question arose: Did the run count or did it not? Had the out at the plate closed the inning or did the "fourth" out take precedence over the third out?

STATE BASKETBALL CHAMPIONS UNABLE TO PLAY IN CHICAGO

Team Defeats Dover Easily To Snare State Title

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—With the second straight state high school basketball championship in their possession Dayton Stivers today put away their cage suits and awaited spring weather to practice baseball.

The state scholastic champions will not compete in the national tournament to be held at Chicago, a rule recently voted by the State Teachers' Association prohibiting them from participating in the big meet.

Sweeping all opposition before them, the brilliant Orange Crushers won their seventh state title by trouncing Dover in the final game here Saturday night, 36 to 22, after easily defeating Akron Garfield and Columbus Central in early rounds.

Akron St. Mary's won the class B championship by defeating Bluffton, 28 to 26, after overcoming a big lead. The Akron five was the surprise of the tournament, ending each of its games in a cyclonic burst of speed and basket shooting that all but dumfounded the opposition as well as spectators.

Stivers placed three men on the all-state class A team, Captain Bobby Colburn, forward; Hosket, center; and Brown, guard, while Dover won two berths, Low at forward, and Beltnier at guard.

The second team is composed of Summerick and Popeko, Akron Garfield forwards; Plank, Columbus Central, center; and Vandervort, Portsmouth, and Leiber, Canton McKinley, guards.

Seven players on the Dayton squad, including most of the five regulars, will graduate this year, weakening considerably the hopes of producing another titular team until another year or so.

OHIO STATE LEAGUE WILL START MAY 1

MASSILLON, O., March 18.—The newly organized Ohio State Baseball Association will open its season May 1, with six and possibly eight clubs in the circuit.

Tentative plans for the opening were mapped out at a meeting held here yesterday.

Six teams were awarded franchises. They are Canton, Cleveland Tollings, Massillon Agathons, Youngstown, Akron Firestones, and the former Akron Generals.

Former memberships were granted to Zanesville and Coshocton, with a limit of two weeks to enter the first half season. An elimination tournament will be held in August.

Officers elected were Edward J. Jacob, Canton newspaperman and well known sports promoter, president, and George Textor, of Massillon, vice president. The executive board will be composed of Paul Sheeks, Akron Firestones, Frank Mills, Youngstown, and Textor.

A schedule and by-laws will be adopted at a meeting to be held here next Sunday.

Bowling

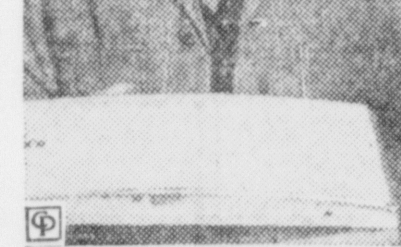

With the end of the season in sight The Downtown Country Club and Fuller Bros. are engaged in a neck and neck race for the championship of the city.

The D. T. C. Club made a clean sweep of its three-game series with Hunt's Broom Makers Friday night but Fuller Bros. kept pace with the leaders by winning three games from Browns through failure of the furniture team to appear for the scheduled match.

The D. T. C. Club meets Browns and Fuller Bros. oppose the Browns Makers in the double-header next Friday night. League standing follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
D. T. C. Club	46	29	.613
Fuller Bros.	45	30	.600
Browns	31	44	.413
Broom Makers	28	47	.373

Leaves Dartmouth

Jesse Hawley, whose six-year reign as head football coach at Dartmouth has been the most successful in the history of the college, has quit to devote his entire time to his radio business. He is shown in his radio laboratory near Chicago. Jackson Cannell, Dartmouth backfield mentor, has been named to succeed Hawley.

Grey Fox Shares Club Worries

Clark Griffiths, the cagey owner of the Washington Senators, has taken himself a partner to share his worries over the boys. It's Mrs. Clark Griffiths to his left to whom he was married a few days ago. They are spending their honeymoon at the training camp.

RICHMOND, IND., PITCHER MAY BE SIGNED TO RESERVE CONTRACT

Thomas H. Bolton, pitcher for the Richmond Deuces, Richmond, Ind., last season, will be given a try-out by the Xenia Reserve Baseball Club this year. Manager Jesse Chambliss announces.

Bolton hurried last season in a game here and after limiting the local slugger to one hit in the first five innings, was touched rather freely in two frames and the reserves won, 11 to 0. Bolton looked good, however, for the first half of the contest.

Several candidates for the Reserve nine attempted to practice at Washington Park Sunday but it was too cold. Better weather here, the squad expects to have a workout next Sunday.

MORGAN TO ADVISE ON FLOOD CONTROL

Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch College and president of the Dayton Morgan Engineering Co., who returned to his home in Yellow Springs Sunday following a month's tour of the country, went to Springfield Monday to make a personal survey of the situation previous to making suggestions for establishing a flood control system there.

It is hoped to establish a system that will guard against a recurrence of the recent disastrous flood in that city.

OPENS MARCH 23

Saturday, March 23 is announced as the formal opening date for The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch grocery store and meat market at a new location on N. Detroit St. Rooms formerly occupied by a billiard parlor and shoe shining establishment have been combined and remodeled and a new front built. The company will vacate its present room on N. Detroit St.

ROBBERS ESCAPE

TOLEDO, O., March 18.—Three robbers, engaged in opening safes in the Village Farm Dairy Company office, escaped amid an interchange of shots when they were discovered by Joseph Eno, night watchman early today.

The burglars had succeeded in opening only one of three safes when they were discovered.

Jinxed Sprinter

Although he has finished first in 17 straight cross-country races for Grove City College, Grove City, Pa., James W. Evans, of Erie, Pa., never has been on a winning team. In 17 races he has been hard pressed but once. During his entire career Evans has been first in 23 out of 29 starts.

FINISHES WORK— ENDS LIFE

CLEVELAND, Mar. 18.—With all of his work finished, Henry Hynes, 57, Cleveland, a baggage man on the Big Four Railroad, ended his run in Cleveland early today in death.

It was a death brought on by his own hand, attendants at the county morgue, where his body was taken, said.

The Big Four train from St. Louis on which Hynes worked, left at 12:30 a. m. Several pieces of baggage were taken on there. Hynes arranged for their proper handling here.

When his train pulled into Cleveland at 2:30 a. m. he was found on the floor of the baggage car writhing in agony. Beside him was a bottle of poison, and in a pocket a note asking that his brother, G. E. Hynes, of Bellville, be notified. He was dead before he could be taken to Lakeside Hospital. He had been in the service of the Big Four for thirty-five years, fellow workmen said. Recently he had been in ill health.

SCIATICA

THERE is no need to suffer from sciatica—nor neuritis or neuralgia—longer than it takes to invoke the aid of Bayer Aspirin. These tablets are an effective pain-dote for the most acute pain; and the quickest means of breaking a cold or stopping headaches. Perfectly harmless to anybody, for doctors tell you they do not depress the heart. So women need not hesitate to use them on days which would otherwise be fraught with pain. Just be certain to get genuine Aspirin—it has Bayer on the box and on every tablet.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor The Farm Journal
Published by Special Arrangement of Central Press and The Gazette With The Farm Journal

There are millions of people, I suppose, who will never be able to get through their heads what farming is. They think they know. They would be annoyed to be told that they do not know. But one simple basic fact of agriculture, the elementary thing about it, escapes them and always will, no doubt.

This is, briefly, that agriculture is not one, but a group of competing businesses.

Farmers are not alike, but differ among themselves as much as city people do, or more.

Farmers not only do not, but in the nature of things cannot, universally agree on anything—unless it be that taxes are too high.

One branch of the farming business is often in opposition to another branch, and in bitter competition with it, while both branches may be in conflict with the interests of industry and commerce.

Under such circumstances, how ridiculous it is to speak of "the farmers," as if they constituted a single united and homogeneous class of people.

How absurd the cry of some politicians, inside and outside congress that if farmers, themselves, would agree on some measure of farm legislation, congress would put it through for them.

Such a thing is impossible, since many branches of farming are consumers of the products of other branches, and what would help one would hurt the other.

That is not to say that agriculture is in a chronic state of internal war. The interests of buyer and seller are antagonistic, to be sure, but both parties are united in wanting the sale to go through. The trade must take place, or both parties are worse off.

What I would like every reader of these words to keep firmly in mind is that "the farmers," or "farming," or "the business of agriculture" come very close to meaning nothing at all, unless you specify which branches of farming are meant.

One of the famous men in the business is Thomas D. Campbell, of Montana, who has received a great deal of publicity for the methods by which on 55,000 acres of Indian lands, he produces enormous crops of wheat. He uses tractors only. There is no livestock on his "farm," he uses no fertilizer to replace the plant food he takes from the soil.

What he does is to mine from a virgin soil the fertility stored there, turning it into wheat by machine methods. When that fertility is depleted, and yields become so low that the grain is no longer produced at a profit, Mr. Campbell will move elsewhere or go out of business.

There is hardly any resemblance between such operations and those of a genuine farm. I am not sure that clam-digging has not a better right to be called by the name of agriculture.

Mr. Campbell, by the way, is now in Russia, I believe advising the Soviet government how to apply his machine methods to the great stretches of Russian wheat lands.

But there is no greater difference between Montana wheat mining and real farming than there is, for example, between a dairy farmer in northern New York and a cotton grower in the Texas Panhandle. Or between a raiser of market hogs in Illinois, a potato grower in Maine, and a poultryman in Sonoma County, Cal.

There is, I think, no moral to these observations. But when one arises in the wilderness, claiming to be the true and authentic voice of the farmer, it is always permissible to ask in the interest of clarity, "the voice of WHICH farmer?"

Another joint conference between county commissioners of Greene and Clark Counties was held at Springfield Monday morning for the purpose of giving further consideration to repairs to the bridge spanning Mad River near Osborn.

The recent flood badly damaged the north abutment and it is hoped to save the structure from being a total loss. For the present temporary repairs have been made by The Champion Bridge Co., Wilmington.

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON ©1929 by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:
Betty Brown dances for a living. Her nimble feet dance away from all her old friends to many new ones, less desirable. With Andy Adair, one of the new ones she had, an automobile accident which ends her dancing career by dislocating her knee. It ends her friendship for Andy, also, as he never comes to the hospital. George Harris, however, an old friend, pays her hospital bills and gives her a position as cashier in his restaurant. She sees herself drifting inevitably into marriage with him, although she does not love him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XL
Resenting the remarks made to her by Thomas on their automobile ride, Betty went to her room in a bad temper. He seemed to take it for granted because she had danced in a night club, that she was not as good as she might be. Mad at herself for yielding to the temptation to go out with a man she knew only casually, she went to her room with only a simple "Good night!" when Mrs. Hogan remonstrated with her about going riding with any one except George Harris.

She had long since realized that she would marry George. She could never face herself in the mirror again if she refused this kindly, sober-minded man who had been so good to her. But she did resent it instantly that Thomas had taken it for granted that she belonged to Harris. Now Mrs. Hogan thought the same thing!

Why couldn't they let her alone? She would do her duty when the time came, but she did not want to be reminded of it every minute. She sat on the table in her room and swung her stiff leg back and forth until it pained her. It got better so slowly she was beginning to fear it would never get well.

Finally she undressed and went to sleep in a state of resentment at fate. When she awoke in the morning, however, the mood had passed. As she entered the restaurant she said to George: "I went for a ride with Mr. Thomas in his automobile last night after I left the restaurant."

National Farm Outlook

There are millions of people, I suppose, who will never be able to get through their heads what farming is. They think they know. They would be annoyed to be told that they do not know. But one simple, basic fact of agriculture, the elementary thing about it, escapes them and always will, no doubt.

This is, briefly, that agriculture is not one, but a group of competing businesses.

Farmers are not alike, but differ among themselves as much as city people do, or more.

Farmers not only do not, but in the nature of things cannot, universally agree on anything—unless it be that taxes are too high.

One branch of the farming business is often in opposition to another branch, and in bitter competition with it, while both branches may be in conflict with the interests of industry and commerce.

Under such circumstances, how ridiculous it is to speak of "the farmers," as if they constituted a single unit and homogeneous class of people.

How absurd the cry of some politicians, inside and outside congress

DOWN WITH TAXES
WE WANT LOWER TAXES

FARMERS DO NOT AND CANNOT AGREE ON ANYTHING EXCEPT THAT TAXES ARE TOO HIGH.

that if farmers, themselves, would agree on some measure of farm legislation, congress would put it through for them.

Such a thing is impossible, since many branches of farming are consumers of the products of other branches, and what would help one would hurt the other.

That is not to say that agriculture is in a chronic state of internal war. The interests of buyer and seller are antagonistic, to be sure, but both parties are united in wanting the sale to go through. The trade must take place, or both parties are worse off.

What I would like every reader of these words to keep firmly in mind is that "the farmers," or "farming," or "the business of agriculture" come very close to meaning nothing at all, unless you specify which branches of farming are meant.

One of the famous men in the business is Thomas D. Campbell, of Montana, who has received a great deal of publicity for the methods by which, on 55,000 acres of Indian lands, he produces enormous crops of wheat. He uses tractors only. There is no live stock on his "farm," he uses no fertilizer to replace the plant food he takes from the soil.

What he does is to mine from a virgin soil the fertility stored there, turning it into wheat by machine methods. When that fertility is depleted, and yields become so low that the grain is no longer produced at a profit, Mr. Campbell will move elsewhere or go out of business.

There is hardly any resemblance between such operations and those of a genuine farmer. I am not sure that clam-digging has not a better right to be called by the name of agriculture.

Mr. Campbell, by the way, is now in Russia, I believe advising the Soviet government how to apply his machine methods to the great stretches of Russian wheat lands.

But there is no greater difference between Montana wheat mining and real farming than there is, for example, between a dairy farmer in northern New York and a cotton grower in the Texas Panhandle. Or between a raiser of market hogs in Illinois, a potato grower in Maine, and a poultryman in Sonoma County, Cal.

There is I think no moral to these observations. But when one arises in the wilderness, claiming to be the true and authentic voice of the farmer, it is always permissible to ask in the interest of clarity, "the voice of WHICH farmer?"

Another joint conference between county commissioners of Greene and Clark Counties was held at Springfield Monday morning for the purpose of giving further consideration to repairs to the bridge spanning Mad River near Osborn. The recent flood badly damaged the north abutment and it is hoped to save the structure from being a total loss. For the present temporary repairs have been made by The Champion Bridge Co., Wilmington.

The Theater

The advent of English players to Hollywood, many of whom are willing to accept less salary than ordinarily paid, has convinced the screen colony it made a mistake in failing to establish a branch of Actors' Equity there a year or so ago.

Most of the foreign invasion has been stopped, but the British contingent now must be reckoned with. The English came flocking after the successes attained by such sterling performers as Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Lawrence, Jack Buchanan and others and the influx was characterized by mediocrity and a willingness to accept less salary.

Equity stepped in to protect the American legitimate actor, just as Broadway protects its own, and the cinema players were not unopposed and were helpless against the invasion. Most of the players in Hollywood recruited from the stage, are members of Equity and accustomed to its protection but in Hollywood they do not have this that Miss Eagles is temperamental but Monta Bell, who directed her in the talkie "Man, Woman and Sin", and immediately asked her again for the lead in "The Letter", found her a thoroughly amenable person. "Our association was altogether happy. I have always found her reasonable and devoted to her work", says Bell. So you may draw your own conclusions.

The D. A. R. movie guide suggests these: "Adoration", story of the Russian revolution; "The Banton Cowboy", a Western for children; "Four Devils", a love story of two young acrobats; "Fancy", animal film; "Flight of the Southern Cross", a picture log of that epic flight—and more anon.

power behind them and must learn to take orders and give more than forty-eight hours a week to the studio.

The far seeing screen trouper are worried. There are three steadily producing studios in Hollywood: Warners (which has taken charge of First National); Fox (recently merged with M. G. M.); and Famous Players. United Artists, Universal and R. K. O. have longer production kills than the others.

With work sources diminishing, so many players on hand and the Britishers willing to take less pay and longer hours, there is reason for the worry. It is predicted that central office casting will succeed the present method for free lancers soon. Managers will fade away and the player will be tied up to the first job offered. And he will be even more dependent upon the producer. This situation may come about within a year. Its development will be interesting to watch.

Jeanne Eagles, of course, is one performer who doesn't feel the same way about Equity. The association suspended her and forbade her appearing on a stage with Equity players following a disagreement.

TWO YOUTHS ADMIT THEFT OF CHICKENS FROM CLARK COUNTY

Arrested by Clark County authorities early Saturday morning while attempting to dispose of twenty-four chickens, which they afterward confessed having stolen from chicken houses in Greene County, two Washington C. H. youths were turned over to Sheriff Ohmer Tate and are being held in the Greene County Jail.

The youths gave their names as Emerson Tipton, 16, and Andrew Fleming, 18, both of Washington C. H.

Following a day of investigation, Sheriff Benham and his deputies of Clark County, announced their belief the fowls were stolen from the farms of Glen Cline and Curry McElroy on the Columbus Pike, near Cedarville, last Friday night.

Seventeen of the chickens found in the possession of the youthful pair are alleged to have been taken from the McElroy farm while the other seven are thought to have been taken from the Cline farm. It is said that at both places entrance to the poultry houses was gained by force, constituting burglary.

In a signed confession the two boys are said to have told of leaving their homes early Saturday morning and driving to the McElroy and Cline farms. After they had stolen the chickens, they drove to Springfield, arriving there at 5 a. m. They waited in a restaurant until Springfield poultry houses opened.

The stolen chickens, according to their confession, were being weighed in one of the poultry houses when the sheriff walked in and arrested the youths. His suspicions had been aroused by their efforts to dispose of the fowls.

In the first confession obtained from the two boys early Saturday, the youths are said to have claimed they did not know the names of the farmers from whom the chickens were stolen. Taken back over the route they had traveled to reach Springfield Saturday afternoon, the boys pointed out the farms to the Clark County sheriff and further inquiry disclosed that thefts of poultry had been committed at both places during the night or early morning hours.

Tipton, being a minor, will probably be turned over to Juvenile Court while Fleming will probably be bound over to the grand jury on a burglary or grand larceny charge or both.

FORMER XENIAN IS FOUND DEAD NEAR HOME IN MICHIGAN

Mrs. Bertha Anderson Squires, 44, former Xenian, wife of Arthur H. Squires, was found dead in Commerce Lake, near her home at Commerce, Mich., Saturday afternoon.

She had evidently arisen during the night and, attired only in her night clothing and hose, had walked from her home to the Huron River which runs back of the house and the body floated downstream to the lake.

She had retired at 10 o'clock Friday night and her husband did not know of her disappearance until he arose at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. There were no marks of violence on the body and the coroner believes she either walked from the house during her sleep or because of temporary aberration.

Mrs. Squires had always lived in Xenia until her marriage to Mr. Squires which took place September 1, 1927, following which they went to Commerce to live. Her husband, who is formerly of Spring Valley, had made his home in Michigan for ten years. Besides her husband she leaves her mother, Mrs. Henry Anderson, Orange St., a brother, Carl Anderson, Xenia and a sister, Mrs. William O'Connor, Springfield.

She was reared in the Presbyterian faith in Xenia and was a member of Pride of Xenia Council, Daughters of America. The body will arrive in Xenia Tuesday morning and be taken to the home of her mother, where friends may call Tuesday night. Funeral services will be held at the Anderson home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

NEED ANY TROOPS?

ASUNCION, Paraguay, March 16.—Letters from United States college students volunteering to fight for Paraguay against Bolivia were received by President Guggari long after the Chaco quarrel had quieted down.

One from the University of Texas, Austin, said that Ernest Joseph, the writer, desired to "come to the aid" of Paraguay with 200 companions, all students of the university and with military training.

A second letter, from Comanche, Tex., offered the help of James Madison, who said that he was an aviator and wished to volunteer with two companions, sergeants and machine gunners. Similar letters were received by the Bolivian authorities from Americans eager to see a fight in the swampy, mosquito-infested Chaco.

VALUATION FOR TAX PURPOSES WILL NOT BE CUT DURING YEAR

No further reduction in the valuation of lands and lots in Greene County is contemplated this year, according to County Auditor R. O. Wead.

A 10 per cent slice in the valuation of both farm and municipal lands and lots was allowed by the state tax commission in this county in 1927 following the county-wide reappraisal of property.

Nine other counties have sent delegations to the tax commission to learn what reaction that body would have toward a cut of taxes on farm land but no formal requests for reductions have been made.

Many counties are expected to take steps in reducing the tax valuations after the 1931 appraisal has been made.

While in other counties farms are selling for as much as 30 per cent less than the value listed on the tax duplicate, this situation does not apply to Greene County, Auditor Wead said.

With few exceptions, farms sold on foreclosure at sheriff's sales in this county in the last two years have brought their appraised value and while this condition prevails, no reduction in land values will be considered, at least this year, it is announced.

TOP-DRESS WHEAT

Nitrate of soda returned a profitable increase in yield of grain when applied as an early spring top-dressing for wheat, in tests at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, according to R. M. Salter, chief of the department of agronomy. The prospect of cheaper nitrogen fertilizers makes the result of this experimental of especial interest to farmers at this time.

The 5-year rotation fertilizer experiment at Wooster was begun in 1894. Some of the results received 16 per cent superphosphate at the rate of 320 pounds per acre per rotation, half on the wheat, together with 260 pounds of muriate of potash, of which 100 pounds goes on the wheat. Other plots have received the same amounts of superphosphate and potash and in addition the wheat has been given 160 pounds of nitrate of soda. Prior to 1921 the nitrate was applied as a top-dressing in the spring. Beginning that year the nitrate has been applied along with the phosphate and potash at seeding time.

For the eight years just preceding 1921 the plots receiving phosphate and potash only gave increases for the fertilizer treatment averaging 10.08 bushels per acre. For the plots receiving 160 pounds of nitrate of soda is $4.50, in the spring in addition to the fall application of phosphate and potash the average increase was 18.10 bushels. Thus the nitrate has to its credit 8.02 bushels of wheat worth $10.03 at $1.25 a bushel.

At $60 a ton the cost of 160 pounds of nitrate of soda is $4.80. For the eight-year period beginning in 1921 the increase from phosphate and potash averaged 12.73 bushels and from the fall application of 160 pounds of nitrate of soda, 6.33 bushels. This was a difference of 1.63 bushels in the increases from nitrate of soda in favor of the spring application. There is evidence that the increase in favor of the spring application would have been larger had the nitrate been applied a few weeks earlier.

SAVING POULTRY

COLUMBUS, O., March 18.—Half a dozen practical methods applied to poultry raising on Ohio farms saved the lives and value of 38,000 baby chicks in 470 farm flocks last year, according to reports of the poultry extension department of Ohio State University.

Chick mortality among the 246,782 chicks in these flocks was only 18.6 per cent up to the age of ten weeks. Average mortality for the same period in the ordinary farm flock is 34 per cent.

Reports on the 470 flocks were made after the flocks had been enrolled in a "Grow Healthy Poultry" project of the poultry extension program of the university. The owners were supplied with recommendations for proper sanitation and feeding, and county agents and specialists assisted them in management of the flocks.

Analysis of the reports showed that the average farm poultryman in Ohio raised a higher percentage of Leghorns than of the common heavy breeds of chickens, which explains the frequent choice of Leghorns for the larger flocks.

TWO YOUTHS ADMIT THEFT OF CHICKENS FROM CLARK COUNTY

Arrested by Clark County authorities early Saturday morning while attempting to dispose of twenty-four chickens which they afterward confessed having stolen from chicken houses in Greene County, two Washington C. H. youths were turned over to Sheriff Ohmer Tate and are being held in the Greene County Jail.

The youths gave their names as Emerson Tipton, 16, and Andrew Fleming, 18, both of Washington C. H.

Following a day of investigation, Sheriff Benham and his deputies of Clark County, announced their belief the fowls were stolen from the farms of Glen Cline and Curry McElroy on the Columbus Pike, near Cedarville, last Friday night.

Seventeen of the chickens found in the possession of the youthful pair are alleged to have been taken from the McElroy farm while the other seven are thought to have been taken from the Cline farm. It is said that at both places entrance to the poultry houses was gained by force, constituting burglary.

In a signed confession the two boys are said to have told of leaving their homes early Saturday morning and driving to the McElroy and Cline farms. After they had stolen the chickens, they drove to Springfield, arriving there at 5 a. m. They stayed in a restaurant until Springfield poultry houses opened.

The stolen chickens, according to their confession, were being weighed in one of the poultry houses when the sheriff walked in and arrested the youths. His suspicions had been aroused by their efforts to dispose of the fowls.

In the first confession obtained from the two boys early Saturday, the youths are said to have claimed they did not know the names of the farmers from whom the chickens were stolen. Taken back over the route they had traveled to reach Springfield Saturday afternoon, the boys pointed out the farms to the Clark County sheriff and further inquiry disclosed that thefts of poultry had been committed at both places during the night or early morning hours.

Tipton, being a minor, will probably be turned over to Juvenile Court while Fleming will probably be bound over to the grand jury on a burglary or grand larceny charge or both.

FORMER XENIAN IS FOUND DEAD NEAR HOME IN MICHIGAN

Mrs. Bertha Anderson Squires, 44, former Xenian, wife of Arthur H. Squires, was found dead in Commerce Lake, near her home at Commerce, Mich., Saturday afternoon.

She had evidently arisen during the night and, attired only in her night clothing and hose, had walked from her home to the Huron River which runs back of the house and the body floated downstream to the lake.

She had retired at 10 o'clock Friday night and her husband did not know of her disappearance until he arose at 7 o'clock Saturday morning. There were no marks of violence on the body and the coroner believes she either walked from the house during her sleep or because of temporary aberration.

Mrs. Squires had always lived in Xenia until her marriage to Mr. Squires which took place September 1, 1927, following which they went to Commerce to live. Her husband, who is formerly of Spring Valley, had made his home in Michigan for ten years. Besides her husband she leaves her mother, Mrs. Henry Anderson, Orange St., a brother, Carl Anderson, Xenia, and a sister, Mrs. William O'Connor, Springfield.

She was reared in the Presbyterian faith in Xenia and was a member of the Xenia Council, Daughters of America. The body will arrive in Xenia Tuesday morning and be taken to the home of her mother, where friends may call Tuesday night. Funeral services will be held at the Anderson home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

TOP-DRESS WHEAT
Nitrate of soda returned a profitable increase in yield of grain when applied as an early spring top-dressing for wheat, in tests at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, according to R. M. Salter, chief of the department of agronomy. The prospect of cheaper nitrogen fertilizers makes the result of this experimental of special interest to farmers at this time.

The 5-year rotation fertilizer experiment at Wooster was begun in 1894. Some of the results received 16 per cent superphosphate at the rate of 320 pounds per acre per rotation, half on the wheat, together with 260 pounds of nitrate of potash, of which 100 pounds goes on the wheat. Other plots have received the same amounts of superphosphate and potash and in addition the wheat has been given 160 pounds of nitrate of soda. Prior to 1921 the nitrate was applied as a top-dressing in the spring. Beginning that year the nitrate has been applied along with the phosphate and potash at seeding time.

For the eight years just preceding 1921 the plots receiving phosphate and potash only gave increases for the fertilizer year.

Experience has taught us the correct methods to use in producing good baby chicks.

Accurate machinery, operated by an expert produces strong, healthy, vigorous chicks that live and grow.

It is to our interest to produce the highest possible percentage of hatchability from our eggs.

As your eggs are cared for in the same manner as our own, they too, will give a high percentage hatch of big healthy chicks.

We'll get you more and better chicks, and they will cost you less than chicks hatched from your own incubators.

Call 129 now, or better yet, come to our hatchery and let us explain our custom hatching plan.
